Schon wieder Kindheit. Schon wieder Dampfhammer, Doppelschelle und La Bomba. Schon wieder fressen, prügeln, kalauern. Schon wieder der Abenteurer, der Erfinder, der Autor, der Wassersportler und die Vaterfigur. Schon wieder die alten Filme, Kollegen und Weggefährten, die auch schon mal an der Legende kratzen. Schon wieder Bud - gejagt von zwei nerdigen Stehaufmännern, denen der Regisseur etwas zu viel Schauspiel abverlangt und Schmalz aufbürdet. Und trotzdem hab ich schon wieder Tränen in den Augen. Danke Carlo. Futtetenne.

A Man Called Spencer (Sie nannten ihn Spencer) by Karl-Martin Pold

"This is a kind of actor you do not see anymore."

Apart from those in real life probably everyone has a childhood hero or even idol in some ways. Whether we are talking about mutated turtles living in New York City's sewers systems, teenagers who via the hidden power in a ring can become super-mighty space rangers defending the earth or an obese man demanding a dozen eggs in his omelet before slamming a rather annoying gray-haired man into the floor using the power of his mighty fists. While the first two examples are mere fiction living off the imagination of those loyal followers or re-animated in the constant... more

Als großer Bud Spencer/Terence Hill Fan alleine schon wegen der vielen Filmausschnitte und der Musik großartig, aber auch die Hintergrundinformationen und der Road Trip auf den wir uns für die Suche nach Carlo Pedersoli begeben sind sehr sehenswert. Abgerundet wird das Ganze durch ein äußerst rührendes Ende. Für alle Fans der beiden Haudegen eine klare Empfehlung von mir!

Lovely story of two Bud Spencer fans who follow his trail through Italy in an old VW bus. They become friends over the same dream: to meet the real Bud Spencer. Marcus and Jorgo (a blind man) not only look like the famous Terence + Bud duo, but show a similar chemistry. Have a look and find out if they will meet Carlos Pedersoli in the end.

Two germans are on the road to meet their idol Bud Spencer...will they find him? Ok, so this one is a roadtrip of two men, who want to meet Bud Spencer, but unfortunately this has many flaws. First of all they seem to be a little naive. They go to Spencers house without an appointment and just say "We're here". I mean come one. Even i would not let this folks into my house. And then there are many interviews throughout with Terence Hill...how the hell did they get an appointment with him, when it's so hard for them to get one with Spencer? This film is a little mess, but it has a lot of scenes from the Hill/Spencer-flicks...
